

Reading Genesis with the Rabbis: Preaching from the Questions

FEBRUARY 8-11, 2026, WEWOKA, OKLAHOMA
hosted by the Omaha Presbyterian Seminary Foundation

Is this for me?

The ancient Jewish rabbis had an intense curiosity about the biblical text, a deep love for God's word that led them to pore over every sentence—every letter—to see what it might reveal to them about God and the life of faith. During this retreat, we will look to the rabbis as conversation partners as we develop our own capacity to read the Bible with deep curiosity, exploring what the text might offer us as we wrestle with what it means to be people of faith today.

With Drs. Amy Robertson and Robert Williamson, Jr., co-creators of the BibleWorm podcast, we'll spend our time together in focused study of texts from Genesis alongside selections from rabbinic literature, allowing the curiosities and concerns of the rabbis to inspire our own imaginations about what the biblical text might hold for faithful preaching today. We'll conclude the weekend with a better sense of how to preach from the questions as well as a general outline of a four-week preaching series on the book of Genesis.

Retreat Leaders

Dr. Amy Robertson

Dr. Amy Robertson is the Director of Lifelong Learning and Music at Congregation or Hadash, a Conservative synagogue in Sandy Springs, GA, where she enjoys asking questions that have no straightforward answer and will do almost anything to get a group to sing with her. She believes that our unfolding lives are a real source of Torah in the world, and seeks always to understand written Torah and lived Torah in light of each other. Amy is the co-host of the BibleWorm podcast, and is studying for rabbinic ordination through ALEPH: The Alliance for Jewish Renewal. She holds degrees from Emory University, Harvard Divinity School, and Rice University, and makes her home with her husband, Will, and two wonderful teenagers who enjoy neither her impossible questions nor her propensity to break into Jewish song.

Rev. Dr. Robert Williamson, Jr

Dr. Robert Williamson, Jr (Bobby) is Professor of Religious Studies at Hendrix College in Conway, Arkansas, and Theologian in Residence of Canvas Community, a church for those living on the streets of Little Rock. He is producer and co-host of BibleWorm, a popular Narrative Lectionary podcast. He holds graduate degrees from Emory University, Oxford University, and Columbia Theological Seminary, and is an ordained Minister of Word and Sacrament in the Presbyterian Church (USA). His most recent book is Reading the Bible with Brueggemann: Scripture's Power to Remake the World.

Where is the Retreat?

Located in central Oklahoma, just a short drive from Oklahoma City, St. Crispin's Conference Center + Camp has been a welcoming space for hospitality, nourishment, and growth for over 50 years. Operated by the Episcopal Diocese of Oklahoma, it provides a peaceful retreat where participants can step away from the busyness of daily life and embrace a sacred rhythm of rest, renewal, and connection in a truly serene setting.
